Literary Analysis “Robinson’s Family – His Eloperment from His Parents”

Daniel Defoe was an English writer, journalist and pamphleteer. Defoe is notable for being one of the earliest proponents of the novel, as he helped to popularise the form in Britain and is even referred to by some as among the founders of the English novel. A prolific and versatile writer, he wrote more than 500 books, pamphlets and journals on various topics, including politics, crime, religion, marriage, psychology and the supernatural.

Daniel Defoe achieved literary immortality when, in April 1719, he published Robinson Crusoe. It dared to challenge the political, social, and economic status quo of his time. By depicting the utopian environment in which was created in the absence of society, Defoe criticizes the political and economic aspect of England’s society.

Crusoe becomes “the universal representative, the person, for whom every reader could substitute himself” Coleridge affirms.

The first chapter of the novel “Robinson Crusoe” provides some details of his family. Crusoe grows up with two brothers, one of which has been a Lieutenant Colonel to an English Regiment of Foot in Flanders, and what has become of his second brother nobody knows. Crusoe is the third son in the family. His father put great pressure and his concern of his son’s life being successful in what he wants, and not what Crusoe wants. Many family arguments have taken place under the Crusoe roof. Crusoe despite his parents’ wishes wants to set out to sea. Being attracted by the idea of becoming a sailor, he goes ashore with his friend whose father owns a ship.

The title “Robinson’s Family – His Eloperment from His Parents” reveals a natural escape of the son; it creates the impression that the son gets away from childhood in order to be himself, to feel the adventures’ waves and to fall into the grown-up life.

The text under consideration is a novel where the author uses the first person narrative in order to tell of the things that only he saw, thought or felt. The tone and point of view, which Defoe uses, enables the reader to experience first-hand the changes that take place within Crusoe’s life. This gives validity to every word and quote in the novel because it is actually the narrator’s words. This point of view clearly shows criticism and feeling. It also has the effect of “making the narrative itself seem to claim position of pure truth, that we associate with concrete matter rather than with fiction or the abstract effect in our minds of a certain arrangement of words”. To establish immediate contact with the reader, the author includes a thoughtful mood due to the fact that Robinson Crusoe ponders about going off-shore. The setting of the text emphasize that the actions take place in 1650’s, many years ago in a world with a different culture, different laws, different customs, different principles, and even different relationships.

Talking about the main character, it is a boy of eighteen years-old. He is a selfish person and a self-sufficient Englishman who thinks of going to sea to see the world without listening to his mother’s and father’s entreaties. He has his eyes banded because does not want to look around to draw the conclusion what is the best for him. His father, an old but a wise man, has given him House-Education in order to achieve

(Grolier English 41; Hutchins 52-71, 97-112, 122-8; Moore 412 & 417; Pmm 180; Rothschild 775). In good condition. An extremely rare and well -tied complete set of this corner stone in English literature. Often greeted as the first novel in English and presumably based on the experiences on Alexander Selkirk, who spent four years on the uninhabited island of Juan Fernandez since 1704, the adventures of Crusoe and his partner have reached the mythical status in history on Friday of western literature. The success of the book was immediate, a second edition was called for only seventeen days after the publication of the first on April 25, 1719, with two other editions published before the end of the year. The most distant adventures appeared on August 20, and tells how Crusoe revisited the island with Friday. A final part, The Serious Reflection, followed in 1720. "The romanticism of the adventures of Crusoe, the figure of the civilized man who gives himself for himself on a desert island, has made a significant impression on the mind of man. Much of modern science fiction is basically the island of Crusoe changed to a planet "(PMM). Condition: close end. Rare first series of the realist novel that transformed the English literature, including the second edition of the work and the first edition of its sequel. Based in part on the famous narrative of the Castaway Alexander Selkirk, the novel by is an adventure set in the New World that describes Crusoe developing self-sufficient virtues to survive. Crusoe has a modern mythical figure in the West: he is a hero of economic individualism on a modern odyssey, born during the rise of English capitalism. Both fun and morally elevating, the book represented an ideal formula in the early years of realist fiction; Robinson Crusoe soon became an international bestseller, with more translations of any work except the Bible, and founded a path for future novelists in the market growing in realist literature that matured in eighteenth century England. It is often described as one of the first novels in English. First published in April 1719, Crusoe demonstrated so popular that Defoe quickly published a sequel, The Farther Adventures of Robinson Crusoe, in August 1719 (here in the first edition, with the second edition of May 1719 of the first part). In 1720, he added a series of essays, Serious Reflection During the Life and Surprising Adventures of Robinson Crusoe, which is not typically printed with the main narrative of the parties and II of today. This set has two copies of the famous front portrait of Robinson Crusoe, so iconic that, does not matter the edition, "we always look for and we are disappointed when we do not find it" (A Edward Newton). Rare in each first edition, magnificently linked in the style of the period. Two volumes of eighth, 7.25 'x 4.25 '. Full calf in vintage style, raised gangs, backbone modeled with an elaborate dorsal, red and black skin leather imprint. The red edges with freckles. Volume I with Clark & Pine (mounted on Stub) frontispiece and 2 pages of the publisher's catalog (of 4); [4], 364, [2] pages; Volume II with additional frontispiece (same as volume I, not called for, cut and mounted in the eaves), long

This first Stockdale edition provides the reader with both the first appearance of Stothard's engravings as well as the first appearance in print of George Chalmers's Life of Daniel Defoe. Thomas Stothard, known for the beauty, invention, textual sympathy and spirit of his illustrations, reached a new level with these for Robinson Crusoe. They are considered to be among his most important, so much so that they were re-engraved by C. Heath and published by Cadell thirty years later. It must also be mentioned that the Spanish Catholic Church placed Robinson Crusoe on their list of Banned Books, the Index Librorum Prohibitorum in 1720, where it remained up until the Index was abolished in 1966 by Pope Paul VI. ESTC T72291, Hammelmann and Bosse 70. Condition: Very good plus. First printing of the first French edition of ROBINSONCRUSOE, one of the first ever translations of the book that has more translations than any work except the Bible. ROBINSONCRUSOE's reputation as one of the most famous books in the world began immediately after publication with the printing of French, German, and Dutch translations in 1720. This edition is prized not only as the earliest French translation, but also for its illustrations: it is the first edition to be illustrated with more than a frontispiece and maps. It contains 6 fine copperplate engravings, including a wonderful frontispiece portrait ofCrusoeby the renowned engraver Bernard Picart, and the highly sought folding map by Hermann Moll (which didn't appear until the fourth edition in English). Two more volumes of the later parts of ROBINSON CRUSOE followed the next year; this volume is complete in itself. A beautiful example of a rare and important book. 12mo. 6" x 3.75". Full contemporary calf, gilt edges, raised bands. Marbles. Anterior engraved by Bernard Picart, 5 copper plate engravings, and an engraved folding map of Hermann Moll. With the Word of Journal on page XII reading "Les" instead of "la". [2], XII, 629 pages. Book plate premature engraved on front gluing, and another plate on the rear bottom. Ink of registration ownership of 1770 and 1816 on credit card. A little wedding concert tickets, almanac illustrations, portraits of popular actors in all these he has infused a grace and a distinction that make them sought after by collectors. Among his most important series are the two series of illustrations to Robinson Crusoe, one for the new magazine and one for the Stockdale edition, and the plates of the Pilgrim Progression
